SUPPLEMENTAL/BID BULLETIN No. 4

TERMS OF REFERENCE

I. TITLE OF THE ACTIVITY:

Capacity Development on Futures Thinking and Strategic Foresight

II. BRIEF BACKGROUND/RATIONALE:

The process of Futures Thinking and Strategic Foresight is to see what the regions can focus on given their strengths, weakness, and context. The next level is for the universities to be able to contribute to regional development and in turn, also contribute to national development. To do this, EVSU has to do its own analysis of its external environment (province) and see what the strengths and challenges of the province and its people are, what are its potentials, and how they can best contribute to the improvement of the people's lives and the environment. This can be done by doing research that is far more innovative than what is currently being done.

Research, in this case, would weave Intergenerational Fairness, Sustainable Development Goals, and Foresight and Futures thinking and would handhold the process from stakeholder engagement until the university research is presented to the regional consortium and the senate committee on SDGs, Innovations, and Futures Thinking for funding.

This will be started with a course on Futures Thinking for university key officials, researchers, and selected members of the board of regents. One of the expected outputs is the identification and elaboration of the chosen university's future. The capacity-building process will use bichronous (online and face-to-face combined) and the learning design makes the best use of andragogy or adult learning.

III. OBJECTIVES:

1. To capacitate the key officials of EVSU on Futures Thinking as well as to selected members of the BOR and researchers
